

"Argille Senesi" - Porcelain Stone

The newest addition to our porcelain tile family- Argille Senesi. A selection of four rich colors of porcelain stone, reminiscent of the oversize cobblestones that cover the streets of Florence, Italy.

The "Brunito" is a mix of rich browns, greys and dark taupe. The tile has a slight undulated texture, providing the slip resistance necessary for your indoor-outdoor projects. This project features 3x12 on the walls- creating a new perspective on the "brick look".

"Cenere" is a warm mixture of grey and white, with almost a cream undertone. Typically, the grey tones absorb light; however the white qualities in Cenere will brighten up a low-lit room.

Is it stone or Argille Senesi "Cenere"? Hmm...

The color is "Rosso", which is a bit misleading. There are some red-tones, but more of a deep brick red, mixed with deep brown and almost black.

Looking across the Florence rooftops, it's easy to see the inspiration from which the colors of Argille Senesi originate.

"Argille Senesi" is a high quality, Italian digital inkjet porcelain. That means the clarity of the pattern is indistinguishable from an actual piece of stone, and there is no repeat of pattern.

Porcelain tile is a hard wearing material which is resistant to staining, scratching and fading, and never needs to be sealed.

Argille Senesi is available in 12x24, 3x12 field, 3x12 surface bullnose and a mixed-color 1x1 mosaic, comprised of Brunito, Rosso and Terra.

Do you know someone in need of a bath remodel? Replace worn carpet? "Argille Senesi" is one of a dozen stone-look porcelains that we carry in inventory every day. Contact your sales representative to learn more about the porcelain selection at Monterrey Tile.
